COMMISSION OF INQUIRY

Washington, May 17.—The principle of arbitration of practically all disputes between nations, including even questions of vital interest and national honor, assumed vitality today when Secretary of State Knox submitted to the British and French ambassadors at Washington the draft of a convention to serve as a besis of pregnition.

The fact that this world movement would be inaugurated with France as well as Great Britain was a great surprise, for it was generally understood that only the United States and England were concerned in the initial Extends Scope of Existing Treaties. The secretary has evolved an instrument which has received the approval of the president and the other members of his cabinet, providing that all differences which are internationally justifiable shall be submitted to arbitration. It extends the scope of the existing arbitration treaties by eliminating the exceptions referring to "questions of vital interest and national honor."

Recognizing that there may be questions of policy and other matter likely to force nations to the brink of war but which no people would be willing to arbitrate, the tentative draft of the treaty provides that differences that either party consider within his category shall be referred to a commission of inquiry empowered to make recommendations for their settlement. The flurry caused by the club's action at that time had partially died down, when, last night, in an address at the Jewish temple, the president revived the subject by saying that he had friends—Gentiles—kept out of clubs "by people who were not worthy to button up their shoes."
